

KAIKI YAMANAKA

He began surfing under the influence of his surfer parents.

At 17, he won the All Japan Junior Championship and twice represented Japan as the national team captain at the World Championships.

After steadily building his competitive career, he earned his professional license.

Following his graduation from Kansai University, he embarked on the world tour with his surfboard and camera in hand.

Driven by a desire to capture and share what he sees and feels through photography and film, he began his creative career in earnest.

In 2023, he held his TOKYO EXHIBITION, and the WEFiND Project—a film he directed and edited—was screened in theaters to sold-out audiences in both Fukuoka and Tokyo.

He also runs an online community called “Life Share Salon,” which now has over 170 members.

Today, he continues to expand his influence not only as a professional surfer and visual creator, but also as a multifaceted storyteller exploring new frontiers of expression.
